- ✘ A free wallchart outlining the history of the Book of Common Prayer.
- ✘ Discounts on Prayer Books and other publications available from the Prayer Book Society's online shop.
- ✘ Advice on possible speakers for speech days and other events including academics, clergy and ordinands;
- ✘ Information about local heats of the Cranmer Awards, a prestigious annual competition for young people aged 11–18 to recite passages from the Book of Common Prayer; and if a heat is not currently taking place in the area, assistance in setting one up.

What does it cost, and what is the money used for?

The suggested annual subscription is £50, which helps to support the Society's work with:

✘ Young people:

Increasing numbers of young people, who may not have encountered the Book of Common Prayer before, find themselves captivated by its words. The Cranmer Awards competition, now approaching its 30th year, helps to introduce school pupils to the Prayer Book, along with an expanding range of other educational resources.

✘ Ordinands:

The approximately 600 ordinands who enter training every year in the Church of England each receive a personal copy of the Prayer Book, supported by a manual on using the BCP and specially-commissioned 'how-to' videos available online.

Workshops and seminars for ordinands are held close to their training establishments. Presented by clergy who are enthusiastic users of the BCP, they extol the value of the resources it contains for practical ministry.

The PBS offers bursaries to ordinands to attend the Society's Annual Conference, which provides an opportunity to hear a variety of distinguished speakers.

✘ Parish clergy:

Working through ministerial training organisers in the dioceses, the PBS offers assistance to new and established clergy. In addition, clergy are also eligible to apply for the Conference bursaries.

✘ Licensed Readers:

The PBS recognises that Readers—especially in country parishes—are most likely to be required to conduct Morning or Evening Prayer services. The Society seeks to support them by organising day courses especially for them.
